National Employability Conclave organised by Aspiring Minds and Dun and Bradstreet

- Career Guru awards winners declared –
 - Performing Minds: N.L.N Reddy (Chaitanya Bharathi Institute of Technology, Hyderabad)
 - Visionary Minds: Atul Kirdant (Sri Vishnu Educational Society)
 - Inspiring Minds: Vijaya Mair (CVR College of Engineering)

- Witnessed participation from more than 100 TPOs and leading industry heads

Hyderabad, December 11, 2012: Aspiring Minds, India's leading employability measurement firm, held the National Employability Conclave (NEC) in collaboration with Business Intelligence firm, Dun and Bradstreet in Hyderabad today. Held at Fortune Park Vallabha, Banjara Hills, the NEC provided a rich interface between Training and Placement Officers (TPOs) from more than 100 institutions and recruiters from reputed institutions such as HCL Technologies, Accenture India Limited, Cognizant Technology Solutions, Deloitte, IVRCL Infrastructures & Projects Limited and CA Technologies among others.

The conclave also saw Training and Placement Officers (TPOs) being recognised through the Career Guru awards for their untiring efforts towards ensuring greater employability. The winners in various categories were:

- Performing Minds: N.L.N. Reddy (Chaitanya Bharathi Institute of Technology, Hyderabad)
- Visionary Minds: Atul Kirdant (Sri Vishnu Educational Society)
- Inspiring Minds: Vijaya Mair (CVR College of Engineering)

The Conclave started off with an opening address from Preeti Misra, Head – Learning Solutions, Dun & Bradstreet India. Mr. K. Panduranga Rao, Group Head – Human Resources & Administration, IVRCL Infrastructures & Projects Limited, and Mr. Jaidev Goteti, Director-Human Resources, CA Technologies, presented in-depth case study presentations on the Engineering sector and the IT sector, two of the key industry sectors with respect to potential recruitments for engineering graduates.

Commenting on the success of the event Varun Aggarwal, COO and CTO, Aspiring Minds said, “Over 100 placement officers gathered and discussed issues in improving student employability with industry veterans. Many important solution strategies were proposed including improving functional skills and making students aware of employability improvement in their foundation building years. The event concluded successfully with the career guru awards given to three placement officers for distinguished contribution to indian employment ecosystem.”

The NEC saw Aspiring Minds sharing sharp insights on understanding and improving the employability gap in India. The employability levels for engineering graduates from Hyderabad, across different industry sectors as revealed, were:

Industry Sectors	Employability
IT Services	16.52
IT Product	1.70
KPO	8.28
Hardware Networking	35.94
BPO	40.64

This was followed by a session on skill building and the ‘Career Guru’ awards which saw TPOs being felicitated and recognised for their efforts towards ensuring greater employability of their students.

NECs to be held in 5 cities, have been conceptualised as a platform for academia and industry HR heads to spur new thoughts and best practices in tailoring training and placement programs. The initiative endeavours to nurture fresh talent and harvest practical solutions towards greater employability. It features HR leaders of some of the largest IT and engineering companies sharing an employer’s perspective on shaping young talent to meet industry expectations. It is supported by experienced corporate trainers, and Aspiring Minds, India’s leading largest job assessment and talent benchmarking company.

Through industry specific case study presentations and interactive sessions, NEC are aimed at sharpening the training infrastructure.

A joint effort of Aspiring Minds and Dun and Bradstreet, the National Employability Conclave leverages the expertise of both to build a more vibrant employment ecosystem that addresses the concerns of all the stakeholders. By highlighting the requirements of recruiters, NECs will help institutions identify gaps in current training programs thereby modifying and re-designing the same. Following Pune and Hyderabad, subsequent NECs will be held across Kolkata, Bengaluru and Delhi.
